CELEBRATING THE COLLABORATION BETWEEN THE SINGAPORE INSTITUTE OF MANAGEMENT AND THE UNIVERSITY OF LONDON

The partnership between the Singapore Institute of Management (SIM) and the University of London (UOL) stands as a testament to four decades of shared vision and academic distinction, having begun in 1986. Over these 40 years, this enduring collaboration has evolved into a hallmark of excellence in higher education in Singapore, nurturing generations of graduates and advancing scholarship in service of an increasingly globalised world. United by a commitment to intellectual rigour and relevance, SIM and UOL have continually equipped students with the knowledge, skills, and adaptability required to thrive amid changing industry and societal landscapes. As we gather to confer degrees upon the Class of 2025, we celebrate not only the achievements of our graduates, but also the legacy of growth, innovation, and academic prowess that has shaped this milestone moment.

A Pillar of Academic Distinction

The University of London proudly acknowledges the Singapore Institute of Management (SIM) as its largest Recognised Teaching Centre, serving nearly 5,000 students across a dynamic portfolio of more than 40 programmes. Backed by a vibrant global alumni network exceeding 50,000 graduates, SIM has firmly positioned itself as a leading hub of academic excellence. The launch of the UOL–SIM Global Education Regional Centre at the SIM Campus in 2017 further underscores the strength, scale, and strategic depth of this long-standing partnership, reflecting a shared commitment to delivering world-class education with global impact.

Driving Tomorrow's Success

Over the years, the Singapore Institute of Management and the University of London have worked in close partnership to ensure that their curricula remain agile and aligned with the evolving needs of the global job market. Academic programmes are continuously reviewed and refreshed to reflect emerging industry trends and technological advancements. Key developments such as digital transformation, data-driven decision-making, and the growing emphasis on sustainability are thoughtfully embedded across disciplines, including Computer Science and Data Science and Business Analytics. This commitment to continuous curriculum innovation empowers students with future-ready skills and the confidence to thrive in tomorrow's industries.

Beyond curriculum excellence, the partnership offers students unparalleled access to the University of London's world-class faculty and academic resources, delivering a rich and globally recognised learning experience grounded in practical application. Complementing this, SIM provides robust student support through comprehensive career services, internship opportunities, and strong industry linkages. Together, this seamless integration of academic rigour and industry relevance equips SIM–UOL graduates with a distinctive competitive advantage, positioning them for success in both regional and international job markets.

Global Recognition of Alumni Achievements

In 2025, our alumni continued to excel on the global academic stage, earning placements in some of the world's most prestigious master's programmes, including Cornell University in the United States. Our graduates also secured highly competitive admissions to leading UK institutions such as University College London and the London School of Economics, underscoring the strong international recognition of their academic calibre. A standout achievement was by Yang Bo, who was awarded the UOL-SIM Regional Centre Master's Scholarship, covering the majority of his tuition fees at UCL. Equally noteworthy, Lee Yi secured two scholarships in the same year, first receiving the SIM-LSE Summer School Scholarship for an immersive three-week academic experience in London, and subsequently securing an LSE Master's Scholarship to support his postgraduate studies at LSE.

ACADEMIC DIRECTION

Academic direction for University of London degrees is provided by the University's federation members. Academics from these institutions design the curriculum, produce the learning materials and oversee assessments. As a result, students benefit from the academic excellence and research-led teaching of the federation member, while maintaining the same standards as those experienced by students studying on campus in London.

Academic direction for the University of London programmes offered at SIM is provided by three world-renowned federation members: the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE), Goldsmiths, University of London, and UCL.

LSE is a world-leading institution specialising in the social sciences and home to a vibrant international academic community.

Founded in 1895, it pioneered the study of social sciences, economics and international relations, with a mission to contribute to the improvement of society.

LSE provides academic direction for the EMFSS (Economics, Management, Finance and Social Sciences) degrees, helping ensure that students develop the knowledge and skills to make a positive impact in the world. Research-led teaching underpins the curriculum, meaning that programmes reflect the latest ideas and maintain strong contemporary global relevance.

As a highly international university, LSE considers EMFSS students an important part of its academic community, and each year many SIM students continue their journey through routes such as the General Course, LSE Summer School, or postgraduate study in London.
